At Missal Trading Limited, we emphasize efficiency, traceability, and customer satisfaction across the supply chain—from sourcing at origin to final shipment. Our goal is to build long-term partnerships by consistently delivering teas that meet the evolving needs of buyers worldwide.

BP1

Broken Pekoe 1

Broken Pekoe 1 (BP1) is a premium grade in the CTC (Crush, Tear, Curl) tea category, known for its larger, evenly cut tea particles. This high-quality tea is made from slightly broken leaves, resulting in a strong and brisk flavor that is ideal for blending, particularly in tea bags and loose-leaf products aimed at delivering a rich cup.

Key Features:

Particle Size: Larger, cleanly cut and curly black granule type leaves.

Liquor Color: Bright orange to Reddish Color, characterized by a rich appearance.

Flavor Profile: Full-bodied, strong, and brisk, with a lingering aftertaste that delivers better strength and flavor.

Use: Popular for blends that appeal to markets seeking robust, malty teas, including breakfast blends.

Pricing: The price of BP1 tea is determined by its quality, which encompasses factors such as leaf size, appearance, aroma, and flavor profile. Higher grades command a premium price due to their superior characteristics, while lower grades are priced more competitively.

PF1

Pekoe Fanning 1

PF1 (Pekoe Fanning 1) is a prominent grade of CTC (Crush, Tear, Curl) black tea, celebrated for its well-balanced attributes. This grade features medium-sized granules that are smaller and finer than Broken Pekoe but larger than dust, making it ideal for producing a quick-brewing cup. Widely appreciated across various markets, PF1 is versatile and suitable for both loose-leaf tea and teabags.

Key Features:

Particle Size: Medium-sized, evenly cut granules that are blacker, curly, and finer, striking a perfect balance for robust infusion.

Liquor Color: Delivers a bright orange to reddish liquor with excellent clarity, complemented by a coppery hue that enhances its visual appeal.

Flavor Profile: Offers a brisk, rich, and full-bodied taste with a hint of malty sweetness and better strength, making it a favorite for tea enthusiasts who enjoy a bold cup.

Use: Ideal for blends in teabags or as a standalone loose-leaf tea. Commonly used in breakfast teas and chai. It stands out for its consistency and vibrant liquor.

Pricing: The price of PF1 tea grade varies according to its quality. Higher-quality PF1 tea typically commands a premium due to its superior flavor, aroma, and overall characteristics. Conversely, lower-grade options are priced lower but may lack the intricacies and

PD

Pekoe Dust

Kenya Black Tea Grade CTC PD, or Pekoe Dust, represents a medium-fine grade of CTC (Crush, Tear, Curl) black tea, striking an ideal balance between strength and smoothness. With its particle size finer than BP1 and PF1 yet coarser than D1, it is versatile for use in both teabags and loose-leaf applications.

Key Features:

Particle Size: Medium-fine, granular texture.

Appearance: Characterized by a blacker, even grainy appearance.

Liquor Color: Bright, reddish-brown liquor with excellent clarity and a coppery brightness.

Flavor Profile: Strong, brisk, and flavorful with a slight malty undertone, delivering a thicker liquor with useful strength.

Use: Ideal for blending in premium teabags or loose-leaf teas, it is commonly enjoyed in breakfast or afternoon blends.

Pricing: The pricing of PD tea grades varies based on their quality. Higher quality teas tend to command a premium price due to their superior flavor, aroma, and overall characteristics.

Kenya's CTC PD grade is highly favored for its consistent quality, quick infusion, and robust flavor. While it may be less nuanced than higher-grade whole leaf teas, it caters specifically to tea drinkers who appreciate a bold and aromatic cup. This makes it highly suitable for a wide range of markets and tea preferences, offering the boldness of Kenyan tea in a versatile and efficient form.

D1

Dust 1

D1 (Dust 1) is a finely granulated grade of CTC (Crush, Tear, Curl) black tea, known for producing a strong and brisk cup of tea. As one of the smaller grades in the CTC category, it is highly valued for its quick infusion, bold flavor, and deep color, making it ideal for teabags and strong blends.

Key Features:

Particle Size: Fine, granular particles, smaller than BP1 or PF1, and even tinier than Pekoe Dust, making it perfect for mass-produced tea bags.

Appearance: The tea has a black, powdery look, indicating its fine particle size and robust nature.

Liquor Color: Produces deep reddish-brown liquor with a coppery brightness, indicative of its strength and richness.

Flavor Profile: Intense, bold, and brisk with a malty undertone that results in a more colorful, thicker liquor.

Use: Ideal for consumers who prefer a strong, full-bodied tea. Often found in teabags, it provides a quick, robust brew with minimal brewing time.

Pricing: The cost of Dust 1 tea grade is influenced by its quality, with higher-quality teas commanding a premium price. Key factors that contribute to pricing include leaf appearance, liquor attributes, and overall flavor profile. The liquor's color, aroma, and taste play crucial roles in assessing quality—richer colors and complex flavors typically fetch higher prices.

Kenya's D1 grade is a popular choice in international markets. With its unique combination of deep flavor and quick infusion; it stands out as a favored option for tea lovers seeking a rich and invigorating cup.
